A three-dimensional plaster replica of your loved one's hand or foot will become a treasured heirloom through the generations.

Our exclusive process captures and preserves poignant details of fingernails, toenails, folds and dimples of preemie newborns to the wrinkles and lines that define the life and history of a grandparent. Bracelets may be displayed on wrists of castings when babies outgrow them. Wiggly hands are not a problem.

Discounts on multiples as well as free castings for in-home group parties are available. Please call or visit our web site to see lots of photos of our work along with info on appointments, gift certificates, free castings, and pricing. Glass domes & bases are available to display your art.

The Whole Process Couldn't Be Easier

The procedure is quite simple and requires only a few moments of your time. A mold of the hands or feet is made using a room temperature, non-toxic gel. In less than a minute the impression is taken. Handcast Treasures uses its own unique formula to cast, pour, and finish that guarantees the highest quality available.

Available to come to your home, hospital, or funeral home.

The molds we make and the people we meet reward us with unforgettable experiences. Handcasts provide comfort and memories for many people . . .

- A mold of a baby's hand, born too early, shows the haste of rushing into the world.
- A mold of siblings holding hands symbolizes the love of best friends.
- A casting of a child's hand in prayer, on a nightstand, will always remind.
- A mold of wedding hands displayed beside the guest registry shows the love, vitality, and aspirations of a future together that will be treasured by posterity.
- A mold of a child's or sport enthusiast's hand holding a ball or other small sentimental object represents a passion; a mold displaying an autographed ball, or holding the ball that won the game shows the love of the sport.
- A multi-generational casting causes the beholder to pause and reflect.
- A mold of a grandmother's hands shows the arthritic form and prominent veins that come with age, hard work and raising a family. Grandpa's mold shows large hands marked with history, the work he loved, and the children he held.
- A hand mold of the terminally ill provides a precious and invaluable comfort when the inevitable comes.
- A mold made at a funeral home provides comfort and solace for the grieving.
